Let's Get Wet

Fun in the swimming pool has come a long way in the last twenty-five years. Dawn Davis looks at the latest generation of water parks.

Back in the 1970s, a typical family day out was a trip to the local leisure centre. Every town had one and they were basically all the same, with a large rectangular swimming pool (shallow at one end, deep at the other), a separate deep-water area with several diving boards, and a kiddie-pool for babies or those who couldn't swim. If you were lucky, there was a short, straight slide that had to be kept wet with a bucket of water. And after your leisure centre experience, there was a drinks machine selling hot chocolate for mum and cans of fizzy drinks for the kids. And that was it.

How things change! Now – thankfully – we have the water park, based on the notion that swimming on its own is not the most interesting activity in the world.

People get bored easily, and demand a lot more entertainment for their money.

In Britain, most water parks are a combination of pools in an enclosed Mediterranean countries, because of the warmer and drier climate, they are more often than not completely outdoors. Some are dedicated water parks, and others are part of a larger leisure or holiday complex. All, however, provide much more than the chance to swim a few lengths.

Unlike the leisure centre, there's little point just turning up for an hour or two. This is partly because there's so much to do, and partly because there's usually an entrance fee which, although quite reasonable if you make the most of what's on offer, is not cheap.

So what is there to do? All water parks have a number of slides. These are not the old-fashioned straight slides of the 1970s, though. They come in all shapes and sizes – some are open, some are totally enclosed tunnels, some are steep, some are bumpy, some twist sharply, some you can go down in pairs or on rubber rings. All of them have water flowing down them. You can often choose how you want to go down – head first, feet first, on your front or back, sitting up, lying down. Your position affects your speed – and how much water will splash into your face!

Other attractions often include the rapids – in which you make your way through a man-made river, surviving the obstacles such as backwards flowing currents, waterfalls and rapids. It's exhilarating and – at times – a little scary, and for some reasons kids are much better at getting round than adults. The baby-brother of the rapids is the lazy pool, where the current gently takes you round a circular channel of water. It's relaxing more than exciting, and some lazy pools even have a jacuzzi half way round.

Some larger water parks have a wave machine in the main pool which makes waves up to a metre high. That makes the whole swimming experience rather more thrilling than in the old leisure centre days. Some have a 'death slide', where you hold onto a bar which slides down a cable over the pool. When it hits the end, you drop into the water! There's also a lot more on offer than a drinks machine. Many water parks boast shops, cafes, bars and restaurants, and a bar actually in the middle of the pool is not uncommon in many Mediterranean water parks. Just remember to keep your money dry!

WRITING

The film "Titanic" of James Cameron is the most famous film of all time. This is the tragic story about a sunken ship and incredible love. More than hundred years ago the ship Titanic sank. A huge number of people died and that's horrible. No one deserve it. The film shows this story so amazing as if it happens in real life. When I have been watched it this movie deeply touched my soul. The love of Rose and Jack is so unforgettable and self-sacrificing. It inspires me so much. It absolutely worth be seen... I give you all advice to do it. I promise that you won't regret it!
